One of the four marching bands visiting Eastern this week practiced their skills in the field across from Taylor Hall. The troops attempted to develop their abilities of marching and playing music. Three additional bands are expected to arrive at Eastern on Saturday and Sunday. The bands are coming from Danville, Limestone and Metamora high schools. (News photo by Frank Garvin)

Wesel voices love of journalism, senate Hours set

(Editor's note: the following is the last in a five-part series profiling the Student Senate's executive officers.)

by Matthew Krasnowski

Student Senate Speaker Ron Wesel has a couple of loves.

"Journalism is my first love," he said.

He proves his love by practicing it. He is a journalism major and he works at The Daily Times-Republic in his hometown of Watseka.

He was also the editor in chief of his high school newspaper and from there, "I went to Eastern with journalism solely on my mind."

At Eastern he worked on the administration staff of The Daily Eastern News for two semesters and worked on night production of the paper. He also joined the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. And then, he found his second love.

"I attended some senate meetings, and some of the members of my fraternity were in the senate," he said. "They talked about it a lot and got me interested."

"So I got on (the PROGRESS party ballot), ran and won," he said.

But, because Wesel took up with his second love, he had to give up his first love at Eastern.

Senate bylaws ask that senators and executive officers not work on the editorial side of the News.

However, Wesel said he "still wants a journalism job" even though not writing for a newspaper during the school year puts "a lot of rust in my pen"—as he discovered when he returned to reporting this summer at the Times-Republic.

The rust may start to collect in his pen again this fall as he begins his second semester as senate speaker. And he has been preparing for this fall's agenda with ideas to bring some unity to the new senate.

His goals for the senate include preparing a large voter registration drive and accomplishing some substantial campus security plan.

But his first call to order will be to "teach the new senators how the senate operates." Wesel said to get the senators acquainted with each other a retreat may be planned.

Having the senators prepare their own ideas was also stressed by Wesel. He said this will keep the senators interested in what they are doing.

"I want them to know that what the senate does is not all Ron Wesel's idea," he said. "It's the senators and the executive officers working together as individuals."

"People will get bored of 'Ron said, do this and do that.' That's why I want them to work on their own ideas."

"It's my duty to channel those energies," he said.

Wesel said he hopes to channel the energy of the senate throughout the fall. "There were problems with senate in the spring, but nothing that could not be solved if they were thought out rationally," he said.

Wesel said from his two loves he has gained the ability "to deal with people."

"In journalism something new happens every day, one day you're speaking with a couple that just moved in the area from Australia and are driving a Model T across the country, and the next day you're interviewing an accused murderer."

As senate speaker, Wesel said, he has to deal with people who have accused him of being biased. But he said he has kept his interests in what he believes is best for Eastern students.

Wesel's outside interests include photography, tennis and, what he said was another love of his, motorcycling.

"I love to just relax and cruise," he laughed.

News halts

The final edition of The Summer Eastern News will be published Thursday, Editor in Chief Denise Skowron said.

It is traditional to publish the summer's final edition during the last week of classes to allow staff members to prepare for final exams, she added.

The first fall edition will be published Aug. 27—the day before classes begin, she noted. This edition will probably include "informational" type stories such as registration and add-drop schedules.

Jazz combo wins national award

by Jack Palmer

Kevin Gainer considers music an art, not a sport. But to win the Outstanding Combo Award at the the Notre Dame Inter-Collegiate Jazz Festival, along with individual honors, Gainer and his combo had to beat a lot of schools.

"The idea for me and the band is not to compete, but to just play. I never approach it like a chore or a competition. I just like to play," Gainer said Tuesday in reference to his victory at the April 14th competition at Notre Dame.

Members of Gainer's combo include Glenn Schaft on drums, graduating music major Chris Wendall on bass and Jean Doy on saxophone, with Gainer leading on piano.

In winning the competition, the combo representing Eastern had to beat a host of much larger schools with more established jazz programs and reputations.

"Going to the festival, we knew there was going to be a lot of dominant schools,..., like U. of I., Michigan State, M.I.T., and going there they probably didn't know what Eastern Illinois University was, but leaving I think they did," Gainer said.

Wendall echoed Gainer's sentiments saying, "That made us feel pretty good."

The combo was selected to participate at the festival upon review of an audition tape they had sent earlier.

"On a whim we just decided to send a tape we had made at a recording studio of some of the things we had laid down and they contacted the Jazz Director, Allan Horney, that we had been selected," Gainer said.

The combo was surprised to be selected and even more surprised at the response they met at the festival. "We were blown away when we got selected," he said.

But once the band arrived at Notre Dame, they found everything much easier than they expected.

"We just sat down and played and things started to cook. When we finished our three numbers we got a standing ovation. It was the greatest, warmest feeling," Gainer said.

As for the future, Gainer will student teach in the fall at Charleston High School and then try his hand at professional music.

"Eastern is a gas, and I really love it here, but it's time to go. I'd like to do music clinics in the future and perhaps go on to more schooling," Gainer said.

Schick sees potential in Eastern

by Mary Holland

Edgar Schick is concerned that people just don't recognize a good thing when they see it.

Saying that Eastern suffers from an "inferiority complex," Eastern's new vice president for academic affairs said one of his top goals is make sure that people throughout the country know just how good Eastern is.

"Maybe—just maybe, we have hid our light under a bushel," Schick said. "I would like to see that others elsewhere increasingly recognize the quality of this institution—its students and its faculty."

Schick said that even people at Eastern sometimes overlook Eastern's real strengths. "This university is better than most people—even people who are here—think it is. I would assume that some people here have an inferiority complex."

Schick said part of that inferiority complex might arise out of Eastern's proximity to the larger and more popular University of Illinois. "Some people might think we travel in the water behind them," he said.

However, he said Eastern should concentrate on developing its strengths rather than measure its success.

But, Schick added that part of his responsibility as vice-president for academic affairs is to "assist and encourage" faculty members in the research they undertake.

"One of the most effective ways of being a role model for future teachers is to be an effective teacher yourself.

Schick said he also believes educators need to prepare students for what he termed the "interdependent/international" nature of the world.

"We have entered into what I call the age of interdependence. Everything we do has an effect on other people," Schick said. "As part of this international world I think as many people as possible should know about other cultures and other societies."

Although a foreign language requirement may aid the study of other cultures and Schick specializes in the German language, he said he would only favor a foreign language requirement if it "fit into the broader educational pattern of the university."

On the current issue of computer literacy, Schick said he believes all students should know something about computers before graduation.

Although a Council on Academic Affairs' sub-committee is currently reconsidering a "computer literacy" proposal, Schick said a separate course is not always needed to ensure computer competency.

"It strikes me that in a number of different schools that I have visited here, you really cannot complete much in the way of academic study without

Edgar Schick
Vice president

exposure to a computer," he added.

One step that Eastern has taken which Schick said he fully supports is the establishment of an honors program. Eastern's honor program, which was started in September of 1982, now involves 170 students.

Schick said the purpose of an honors program is not to formulate a "group of little eggheads," but to encourage students who want to put a little extra effort in their academic endeavors.

However, in order to maintain and expand programs like the honors programs, funding sources must be found. Schick said he hopes his experience at a private college will assist him in finding additional funding for Eastern.

"We have to make a case to our constituents that what we do is very valuable and that we are good stewards of the resources that we have," he said.

Schick added that Eastern must "struggle" to set priorities and make the best use of the limited resources that it does have.

VPAA finds past is a plus

by Mary Holland

Eastern's new vice president for academic affairs says he always had a bit of the "pedagogue" in him.

Edgar Schick, who has been Eastern's vice president for affairs in since Aug. 1, said he hopes his long string of "pedagogical" experiences at both private and public schools will be useful at Eastern.

"There are certain things in life that turn us on," he said. "I guess I've always had the pedagogue in me. I've always wanted to teach."

As the president of Nasson College from 1980 to 1983, Schick said he learned that people need to be treated as individuals rather than numbers.

"Having worked in a small college where we did have collective bargaining and we did have funding constraints one was reminded again and again the importance of working with people as individuals rather than numbers," Schick said.

"I hope that's one of the benefits my colleagues and students at Eastern will benefit from my experiences," he said.

Schick, who also served as an instructor of German, said he became interested in the administrative side of education when he was a graduate assistant at Rutgers University.

"In my second year I was put in charge of all first year language instruction at that campus which was sort of managing a curriculum of 12 sections of freshman German," he said.

Schick said he has always "considered myself an educator who tries to facilitate the overall learning process."

"In a sense you have a larger student class as an administrator than you do as a teacher of German," he said.

Schick added that because administrators are in charge of such a large number of students, it can become easy to look at students as numbers rather than people.

However, as a parent of two daughters, he said he is constantly reminded that the numbers represent people.

"It (being a parent) reinforces your awareness that all those numbers that appear on computer reports and other reports are real human beings which require the best efforts we can provide."

Schick said he left Nasson College in 1983 because he believed he accomplished everything he could there. "The situation there was beyond help," he said.

He said he is eager to come to Eastern because he said it offers the opportunity to work with "competent people."

"It was a chance to work with issues in a positive way and not simply struggle for survival," he said.

"I could tell this was a very good educational institution," he added.

Traditional' graduation time inconvenient; change needed

Idle complaints don't accomplish much. Traditionally, summer commencement has been scheduled for the Sunday before final exams. And traditionally, those graduating complain about the inconvenient time to their friends. Others write letters to the editor. But utilizing the correct channels is the only way to bring about change.

Editorial

Sam Taber, chairman of the university-wide academic calendar committee, explained the process for scheduling events like commencement. He said the calendar is prepared and presented to the Faculty Senate, and if it passes, it goes to Eastern President Stanley Rives for approval.

Taber said in the 10 years summer graduation has been scheduled for Sunday, the time and date haven't been met with disapproval. If the date and time were challenged then the committee would have reason to consider alternatives.

But, there is no doubt scheduling the graduation ceremony for 6 p.m. the Sunday before finals is inconvenient:

- Scheduling commencement on a Sunday means family and friends of the graduates must either spend the night in Charleston and miss work on Monday or they must make the trip home late Sunday night.
- Scheduling the commencement before final exams also detracts from the celebration. Graduation should be a memorable final event to wrap up four years of college; however, graduates must turn in their caps and gowns Sunday night, shake hands with mom and dad and buckle down to study for exams.

Undoubtedly, the scheduled time is inconvenient and should be changed but the only way that change will be brought about is by turning idle complaints into a meaningful voice—via the Student Senate, for example.

As representatives of the student body, senators should be perceptive to their constituents wants and needs. Because the senate is a recognized organization, senators can present a case to the Faculty Senate much more effectively than an individual.

However, senators can not and should not be expected to read minds. Instead of complaining to parents and roommates—who can offer only sympathy—a student should pull a senator aside and state his case. That's what he's there for.

Too often it's easier to complain to someone who can do nothing about a problem than to seek out those senators who can. Ask any senator how often he is approached by a student requesting representation. Much too far and few between. Then there are those students who say, "What does Student Senate DO anyways?"

Sometimes to get something done, all one needs to do is ask—but ask the right people. For 10 years graduates have complained about the inconvenient time of commencement, but complaints to the wrong people bring sympathy—not change.

Play-filled policy to solve political, economic woes

Ah, to be four years old once again.

No school, no worries. But what really made childhood so memorable is the hours spent frolicking.

Return now to those days of play. What happy days they were, eh? Unfortunately, the majority of one's time is now spent working, sleeping or eating and most days seem less than happy. But it needn't be this way.

What we need is playtime.

Americans are over-worked and under-played. This situation should be reversed, thereby making the United States a better country economically, politically and, well, just a whole lot more enjoyable overall.

The country would be better off economically because unemployment would drop and productivity would rise.

What the country needs is a 20-hour work week with the other 20 spent at play. If a company stayed open for 40 hours it could have two separate shifts; thus enabling it to hire twice as many laborers.

And these would be happy laborers. No longer would they get sick of their jobs after the first four hours of the day and take coffee breaks for the next four. They would get to go home and play.

Also, they wouldn't be as tired when they arrived at work so they would work harder during those four hours than they normally might.

With shorter work hours and satisfied employees the U.S. economy would improve through play.

The United States could also be improved politically if politicians would admit that what they do is simply play and not a real job.

Rather than sit around some cold, sterile table in an even colder and sterile building, the President could invite the Russians over to play on the swing-set in back of the White House, followed by a picnic lunch—just like we did after we had fights with our youthful comrades. He might even be able to get Bonzo in on the action.

Instead of real wars we could all just shoot each other with those ugly little toy machine-guns—which, it should be noted, no home should be without. At least the sound effects would still be there. And we could throw paper airplanes instead of wasting all that money on bombers that everyone admits are too powerful to actually use.

In addition to solving all the economic and political woes which our country is battling, think what better people we would all be.

Play relieves tension. If one hated his boss he could set up a dart board equipped with his boss's picture in the basement of his home and after work take the day's aggressions out. The next day he could face the creep with a smile.

Alcoholism and drug abuse might be reduced because one would engage in real physical play, and not be ashamed of doing so in a sober state. People would throw away their sleeping pills because they would be so exhausted at the end of the day that Sominex would be useless.

When I talk about play, I'm not talking racquetball and all those other boring adult games which no one knows how to play either. I'm talking swingsets, stickball, red rover. Real games played by real kids.

Enough reading—go frolic. Your country needs you.

Diane Schneidman is campus/activities editor for The Summer Eastern News.

It's been lotsa fun, thanks, bye

"Karen, line 6."

"I'm sorry but this doesn't make any sense. I'm just going to cut it out."

"What do you mean my story got killed? It was sheer brilliance."

"I can't believe you're changing that. You're too conservative."

That's how I'll remember this place—in terms of quotes. And I've been at both ends of those quotes which has afforded me some interesting insight.

Last spring I was that writer who complained about conservative editing techniques. "You're stifling my creativity," I whined as my creativity was stifled during the editing process.

But this summer I became that editor, who, at times had to stifle someone's creativity because something—a phrase, an adjective—might be misconstrued.

Take for example the word, "said." Countless times I've heard a reader complain, "Said, said, said, is that all they can write?" regarding source attribution.

True, more often than not Mr. Jones' quote will be written, "Jones said" or "Jones added." And it doesn't make for very colorful writing.

However, phrases like "Jones countered" and "Jones argued" will be changed to "Jones said" because "countered" and "argued" carry with them connotations which may inaccurately report the event. Thus, for their neutrality, "said" and "added" are used.

That's no fun—editing a story to make it conform this way.

But you want to know what is fun?

Fun is seeing the interaction of such a diverse collection of personalities on the staff. It's inspirational to see conflicts resolved in favor of putting out the newspaper.

Fun is talking to readers twice a week. While letters to the editor have been few, seeing someone in Hardees's eating lunch and reading the News tells me that he thinks we're worth listening to. This summer's conversation has been great and I hope it can continue in the fall.

Of course, as an outgoing editor, I cannot forget all the thank you's. (Like my sister, Julie, who used to read my diary and write unsolicited comments to improve my writing style and social life—she claims her encouragement is responsible for my being in journalism. Then there are the roommates, the boyfriend and a pair of parents...)

The list goes on but the biggest thanks goes to the reader who takes a little time out of his day to listen. Thanks.

Marching musicians set shows

by Matthew Krasnowski

Three bands will be included in the last set of high school camps to visit Eastern this summer.

Bands from Danville, Limestone and Metamora high schools will be preparing their marching band exhibition for the upcoming fall season of football and band contests.

The Danville High School marching band will arrive Sunday to utilize Eastern's facilities.

John Dugle, of Danville high school said, Band Director John Sampson will lead the band as it practices its routine from 8 a.m. to Noon every morning and during the evening.

Dugle said during the afternoon the students will rehearse inside within its sectionals.

The band of 150 will be preparing for Danville High School Vikings' football games, but it will also be getting ready for competition that will take place in the fall.

The Pekin High School Invitational band competition, and contests at Western Illinois University and Illinois State University will be some of the shows the bands will be practicing for when it arrives.

Danville will host its own Viking Invitational in the fall, Dugle added.

Coming to Eastern Saturday will be the Limestone Community High School marching band will be at Eastern to practice its routines for the fall football season.

The band's director is Chuck Cunningham.

The Metamora Township High School will also arrive at Eastern Sunday.

Michael Domico, Metamora's band director said the band will practice from 8 a.m. to Noon, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and then from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The band will be working to build up its show for competition in the fall.

The 200 Red Birds will be at competition at the Pekin Invitational, Western Illinois University, Illinois State University and at Lake Park.

Metamora, located near Peoria, will also conduct its own competition.

The Limestone band will stay at Taylor Hall until Aug. 15.

The Metamora band will also stay at Taylor Hall, but will stay until Aug. 17.

The Danville band will stay at Lawson Hall, and also stay until Aug. 17.

Final Weight Watchers campers arrive, healthy diet, attitude to be sought

A certain group of conferees have been on Eastern's campus weekly with two goals.

Those goals are "losing weight and gaining a healthy attitude toward eating," and they are the goals of the Weight Watchers Camps, a Weight Watcher spokesperson said.

One hundred and fifty members of the Weight Watchers camps will be on campus every week from now until August 16, the spokesperson said.

The campers range in age from ten to 21 years old.

There will be roughly 20 counselors with the camp, she added.

Unlike most camps that attend Eastern, Weight Watchers brings its own meals.

The camp is like most camps, but with the Weight Watchers' diet, the spokesperson added.

The members will swim, play tennis, volleyball, basketball and arts and crafts during their stay at Eastern, she said.

"The only difference between this camp and others is that every camper will be on the Weight Watchers' diet, which is a very famous, nutritious and balanced diet" the spokesperson said.

Weight Watchers has camps all over the country, she added. There are camps in California, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Colorado and North Carolina.

This is Weight Watchers first year of utilizing facilities at Eastern. The spokesperson said they chose Eastern because it is centrally located in the Midwest.

Weight Watchers Camps will stay at Ford Hall.

Education department said.

The course is an intensive algebra course, Finley said.

The 22 students will spend all day in class; their main instructor will be Robert Megginson. At night, the students will spend their time in study session, Finley said.

There will be some free time for the students to enjoy some recreational activities on Wednesday afternoon, she added. The students will be staying in Lawson Hall until Aug. 18.

Students get credit at algebra seminar

Most people think that camps are all fun and games.

But, as most conferees know, it's a lot of learning. But most conferences do not have to spend as much time learning as the Math Advancement Workshop.

The workshop will arrive Sunday and will consist of 22 incoming freshman at Eastern that want to get an Eastern mathematics requirement out of the way before they start classes later this month, Bonnie Finley of the Continuing Welcome parents, students-to-be...

Future Eastern students and their parents visit Eastern's campus almost every day of the summer to take part in the New Student Orientation program. Mary Smith, assistant director of housing, said nearly 1,500 future students and their parents will tour the campus as part of E.I.U. Debut 1984. During this program both students and parents are introduced to all different aspects of Eastern's campus and students can pre-register for classes, Smith said.

The program begins in the as soon as the parents and students arrive in the afternoon.

First, students majoring in business, industrial technology, pre-engineering, chemistry, physics or mathematics may report to Phipps Lecture Hall (Science Building) by 3:30 p.m. for the required placement examination. The placement exam will be offered during the morning of the second day for those who could not arrive in the afternoon.

After dinner, a panel program will be offered, Smith said. In this program, titled "A Student View of E.I.U." Eastern students will answer questions that the future students and parents have about life on campus and in Charleston.

At 7:45 an optional campus tour will be offered and access to free bowling lanes and billiards tables will be offered.

The next day, pre-registration activities will take place for students. Within this an adviser appointment is scheduled. Participation for students in this is mandatory and it is recommended for parents.

Smith said the program begins at 8 p.m. in Pickles (the basement of the University Union addition).

From there students will meet with advisers, register for classes and take tests that will aid in course placement.

At registration, photos will be taken for student I.D. cards.

Speech and hearing tests will be required during the afternoon, also.

After lunch, future students and their parents can tour the campus, or search for off-campus housing in Charleston, Smith said.

For those who want to see what living in one of Eastern's residence halls is like, a tour of a residence hall will be offered at 1:30 p.m., she added.

There is a greeting area in the University Union addition lobby for those who want to relax while their others tour the campus and town.

The orientation program has been popular, Smith said. "People leave with a fairly positive impression of Eastern."

"We want to show them that Eastern is a caring school and that we care about the students here," she added.

...tips to make your stay pleasant

Check-In All guests may check in and obtain their room key and linen at the main desk located in the lobby of the residence hall which you are assigned. Generally, most rooms will be ready after 1 p.m. on the specified day of arrival.

Check-Out Noon Due to the great demand for residence hall accommodations during the summer months we ask that you please plan to check out of your rooms by noon. We rotate our rooms throughout the summer and the noon check-out time allows our cleaning staff enough time to clean the rooms before our next guests arrive. If you have a conflict with scheduling, please consult the Hall Counselor at the main desk.

Meal Tickets If you have pre-ordered meal tickets through the mail or via telephone, they should be in the envelope with your key. If you have not purchased tickets and now would like to do so, they are available at the main desk.

If you want to purchase breakfast tickets, it will be necessary for you to purchase them on your arrival night, because the main desk will not open until 8:30 a.m. Breakfast is scheduled before 8 a.m. because the first pre-enrollment meeting begins at 8 a.m.

Also, lunch tickets need to be purchased before noon of the pre-enrollment day because the desk closes between noon and 1 p.m.

Meal Ticket Refunds If you have ordered tickets and are unable to use them, please leave them at the desk and your money will be refunded at a later date via Eastern Illinois University check. It is not possible to refund cash. Please make sure your correct name/address is attached to the tickets which you want refunded.

Room Refunds If for some reason, you do not use as any room reservations as you previously requested, please inform the Hall Counselor. Again, it is not possible to refund cash.

Linens/Keys When checking out of the residence hall (noon), please bring your dirty linen and key to the check-out area and have an Eastern Summer Staff member check your linen ad key in so that additional charges will not have to be assessed.

Questions? Please feel free to consult one of our Summer Staff persons.

Want to know more about Eastern? Admission information is available

Conferees who are interested in attending Eastern Illinois University should contact Eastern's Office of Admissions.

John Beacon, director of admissions, said that potential future students can receive admission information and applications for entry into Eastern by contacting the Office of Admissions.

When one receives an application it is best to wait until the early fall of a students' senior year in high school to apply, Beacon advised.

There is no fee for applying and applications are processed immediately after they are received, Beacon said.

Applicants will receive a notice from the Office of Admissions in two weeks, he added.

Guaranteed admission into Eastern does not mean that on-campus housing is guaranteed, Beacon said.

He advised students to apply for housing before applying for admission.

To be eligible for entry into Eastern some academic requirements must be met.

To be admitted to the Eastern candidates must:

Fall Semester—

- rank in the upper half of their high

- school class based on six or more semesters,
- or achieve an ACT composite score of 19 (SAT of 820).

Spring Semester or Summer Terms—

- rank in the upper two-thirds of their high school class based on six or more semesters,
- or achieve an ACT composite score of 17 (SAT 760).

Beacon noted that beginning freshman who could not meet regular admission requirements have the chance of entering Eastern through the Prescriptive Curriculum Admissions Program.

The PCAP is not remedial or conditional—it includes only regularly offered University courses—and the number of students accepted into the program is limited by available resources.

For more information on applying at Eastern, the requirements or PCAP contact by calling:

Holy Cow! Mu Ling's is king, steals IM title from What Ever

by Bill Tucker and Dobie Holland

Mu Ling's Blazing Rice Balls were crowned men's summer intramural champions Tuesday as they downed previously undefeated What Ever 7-5.

What Ever destroyed Masters of the Universe 13-1 Tuesday while the Rice Balls outlasted Hit List 10-5 as both teams advanced to the finals.

In the championship game, the Rice Balls jumped out to an early lead in the top of the first inning as Ron Pemble, Gary Smith and Dan Pedersen all reached base safely and came around to score. Ed Hooser also provided an RBI in the initial frame.

What Ever came back to score four times in the bottom half of the first. Rick Rizzuto, Mark Young, Ed Mears and Brett Hruby all got hits and scored in the first.

In the fourth inning, the Rice Balls came up with four more runs. Dan Pedersen led off with a base hit and came around to score on Ed Hooser's base hit. Grant Sterling got a base hit and Dave "Blaze" Bollman connected for a home run to score Hooser and Sterling.

In the bottom of the seventh, What Ever loaded the bases and managed to score a run with one out. Later in the inning, What Ever captured the tying run at first and the winning run at the plate but Pemble got Mears to ground out to second baseman Steve Buckley to give the Rice Balls the title.

Rick Rizzuto went 3-4 for What Ever and Mears and Young were both 2-4 in the final game.

Ed Hooser, Grant Sterling and Dave Bollman turned in 2-3 in performances for the Rice Balls. Pedersen also went 2-3 scoring two runs.

In the first game, in which What Ever trounced Masters of the Universe, Mears was 2-3 with two home runs. Hruby went 3-3 with two home runs and three runs scored and Dave Maurer went 2-3 with two runs.

In the fourth inning, Whatever came up with six runs highlighted by back-to-back home runs by Mears and Hruby. Masters of the Universe scored their lone run in the fifth to avoid the shut out.

Mu Ling's Blazing Rice Balls had to get by a tough Hit List team to advance to the finals.

Jim Lyons, John Williams, Lenny Seward, Bill McMillan and Stan Cochrane all reached safely in the first as Hit List came up with three runs.

In the second inning, first baseman Jim Lyons of Hit List was hit in the nose by a blistering ground ball off the bat of Steve Buckley. Lyons had to leave the game. With the absence of top flight outfielder Tony May, Hit List was forced to continue the game with only eight players.

Hit List added single runs in both the third and fifth innings.

The Rice Balls came up with three runs in the first as Pemble, Pedersen and Hooser all scored on Koehler's RBI single.

In the second, the Rice Balls came up with four more as Buckley, Pedersen, Gary Smith and Bill Tucker all got hits and scored.

The Rice Balls added some insurance in the sixth as they plated three more runs.

Seward, Bill McMillan and Cochrane went 2-4, 2-4 and 3-4 respectively for Hit List.

Pedersen, Bollman and Gary Smith each turned in a 2-3 performance for the Rice Balls.

The Rice Balls rose to occasion in the playoffs turning in strong performances in each position. Sterling, Buckley, Smith, and James proved that a winning softball team must have a good defense as well as a strong hitting attack.

What Ever's standout squad walked off the field mumbling under their breath "our summer has been ruined."

So in the words of Harry Caray, "Mu Ling's Blazing Rice Balls, this Buds for you."

IM basketball winds down to final contests

Tuesday's intramural basketball contests were in essence the last game of the regular season as the Ghostbusters cinched the right to play Bay City Rollers by handling the Lakers, 63-39, while the other two contests were forfeits.

Because of the mass exodus of students and intramural officials next week, basketball playoffs have been reduced to a competition between the two best teams in the league late Wednesday.

The win moved Ghostbusters into a first place tie with Bay City who have identical records, 6-1. And so both teams will battle for the bragging rights of the competition.

Ghostbusters used strong rebounding to trigger

Olympics place Dykstra in ironic circumstances

by Dobie Holland

Eastern cager Tim Dykstra is playing in the Olympic Games under an ironic set of circumstances.

Dykstra left Eastern's basketball team—a major sport at the university and in the United States—to play team handball.

The irony is that handball is a sport which is relatively unknown to the United States. And handball is not a game which the United States is recognized for dominating in Olympic competition—unlike basketball.

"Team handball is a European sport, it's unknown here (United States). Europe dominates the sport, especially Eastern Europe," Dykstra said on Tuesday from the Olympic Village in Los Angeles.

Most of the players on the U.S. squad began training three years ago, while the European teams have been training most of their lives. "Although we have improved tremendously, we're not doing as well as we have expected," Dykstra said, "since we can't find our first win."

Despite the handball team's 0-4 record, team members have gained respect of their opponents and the world press for their competitive spirit—battling to the finish—in each contest.

"We've been very competitive. The world press is astounded with our progress, especially Europe," he said.

On the other hand, the United States has annihilated every opponent it has faced in Olympic basketball and the media has covered the games with a fine-toothed comb.

However, the handball team has lost every game in a hard fought fashion. They dropped a close decision to Spain 18-17 on Monday.

And U.S. television has not even aired men's competition, while women's handball has been televised sparingly—about two minutes of TV time.

Also, the press merely buried team handball's record in a collection of statistics, otherwise known as a scoreboard.

Another ironic circumstance which weighed upon Dykstra and the handball team is that he believed they had a chance to win a medal, because of the boycott by the Soviets and eastern block European countries who dominate the sport.

Chances for winning a medal in handball are slim, but the United States will not only win a medal in basketball, all probability dictates it to be gold.

Dykstra said handball is similar to both soccer and basketball. Soccer is another sport in which European countries dominate and has recently been introduced to the United States.

"It (handball) involves a lot of running, jumping and physical contact like basketball and soccer," he added.

The sport seems to have all of the action that Americans love to watch and that is probably the biggest irony of them all, because most Americans do not know the rules or how the game is played.

their always lethal fastbreak to jump ahead, 12-2 during the 15:05 mark.

The Lakers fought back with good half court execution and the shooting touch of Todd Yancy and Kelvin Glascoe to cut the lead to six points, 27-21 ending the first half.

During the second half, the Lakers unraveled as Ghostbusters continued to apply the offense. David James and Kevin Lyles played fine low-post contests to spark the Ghostbusters.

Other match ups had Under Surveillance forfeiting to Bay City and Chang's All-Star Circus was a no-show against G Force to conclude the premature season.
